Narratives from Practice: Exploring the Heart of Ethics

Course Description:

The wisdom and lessons learned from nurses' stories grounds us in an ethic of caring. This inspires and empowers us to speak up, to use our voices, as key members of the health care team. The heart of our interdisciplinary collaborative practice is found in our appreciation and respect for the unique contributions of each member of the team. When we are truly present and engaged, we promote quality and safety, which ensures that patients feel cared for and understood. The conference will include exploring stories that encourage ethical reflection on the challenges, opportunities and rewards of everyday practice.

Course Objectives:

1. Discuss how the narrative, through a reflective process, can enhance an individual's understanding of an ethic of care.
2. Describe how interdisciplinary practice requires the collaboration of all the individual voices to foster excellent patient care.
3. Recognize that the process of ethics requires solid communication skills and a willingness to hear all perspectives.
4. Describe the essential characteristics of effective health care professionals to achieve ethical outcomes.
5. Demonstrate how the American Nurses Association Code of Ethics for Nurses requires a reflective process to integrate ethics into everyday practice.
